Flame Head

🛠 Construction & fabrication

Flame Head is a 2.5-metre-tall muscular, tattooed character with an ever-moving flame as a head.

He is an inflatable suit puppet that is worn by one puppeteer. His chest, arms and back are painted to resemble tattoos and he wears custom made harem pants.

The inflatable body has two inbuilt fans to keep him inflated, while the silk flame head has its own inbuilt computer fan with LED lights to mimic a flickering flame.

He can move around with the full use of the puppeteer's legs and his arms and hands are manipulated by rods.

⊘ Message

Flame Head is a fun, wild character that crowds gravitate towards. They love to touch and dance with him.

👀 Performance

Flame Head is extremely versatile. Performance options are endless, he can be used to roam, interact with crowds, and have photo opportunities or perform his choreographed dances to audiences.

Performances run from 20 to 30 minutes and our performers require a 30-minute break between shows*.
